JOE NEY.

Funeral services for Joe Ney, mention of whose death was made in our last issue as having occurred at 2:30 o'clock on Thursday morning, August 19, 1937, were held at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning, August 21st, in the home of his son, Ed Ney, where it had been viewed by a host of friends from far and near and where a vast concourse gathered before the appointed hour for the funeral. At 9:30, led by the pastor of the St. John's Catholic congregation, Rev. Paul Potgens, the cortege moved to the church edifice where the commodious building was more than filled, many being forced to remain outside during the service. Father Potgens, after a requiem High Mass and a touching and appropriate funeral sermon at the church, completed the rites of his church at the grave. Interment was made in the family plot in the Catholic section of Oakwood cemetery.

The pallbearers were six of the deceased's nephews, namely: Joe H. Steidle, Dunlay; Alfred N. Steidle, Jourdan; Edgar Ney, Corpus Christi; Arthur Ney, Hondo; Raymond Ney, Leakey; and Arthur Reinhardt, Del Rio.

A large concourse of people, one seldom if ever exceeded in number or assembled from more varying places and distances on similar occasions, gathered to pay their last respects to the deceased. A profusion of flowers betokened their sympathy for the bereaved family.

Joe Ney was born at or near the old town of D'Hanis on September 10, 1854. He had, therefore, reached the ripe old age of 82 years, 11 months and 9 days at the time of his demise. He was the eldest son of Joseph Ney, Sr., (member of the family of Johannes Ney, Castro colonist) and wife Theresa Sauter Ney, natives of Alsace, France, and younger members of Castro's third Texas colony, established at old D'Hanis on Parkers Creek in or about 1848.

There were seven brothers and sisters in the family, following after the deceased in order of birth as follows: Mary Ney Steidle, John B. Ney, Euprosina Ney Braden, Theresa Ney Reinhardt, Anton Ney and Henry Ney. Of this number only two, Mrs. Steidle and Mr. John B. Ney, survive. Their father, Joe Ney, Sr., who was a business man in old D'Hanis for years, among other activities running the stage post before the days of railroads and when all travel and transportation was by wagon or stage coach, died at his home in D'Hanis on January 23, 1882.

The mother, Mrs. Theresa Sauter Ney, lived for many years after her husband's death, dying at Castroville at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry Steidle, on or about April 10, 1919, at the age of 86 years.

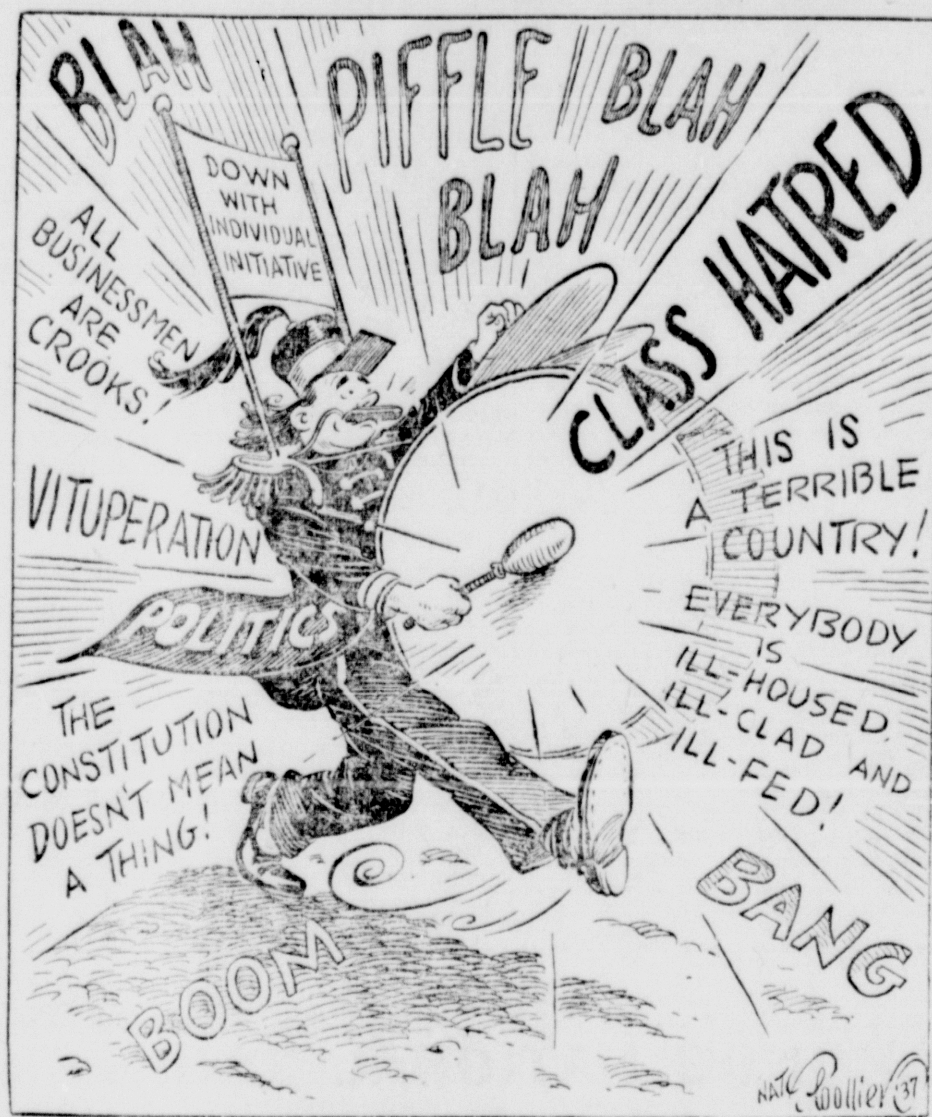

The Ney family trace a family relationship to the famous Marshall Ney of Napoleon's army. Johannes Ney, grandfather of the deceased, was a soldier in Napoleon's army, and among the family relics in the possession of John B. Ney, the deceased's brother, are documents and medals establishing this fact. There is a tradition in the family that "at the break of dawn of June 18, 1815, the morning of the Battle of Waterloo, Napoleon's troops stood for roll call. Deep in meditation, Marshall Ney from his horse, heard the names of the Old Guard called one by one. 'Ney', the name was called, and from the ranks came an answer. Wheeling his horse, the ever brave Marshall Ney of Napoleon's Old Guard rode up to the man who answered to the name of 'Ney'. Questioning the man in the ranks as to his home and family the Marshall said, 'You are my nephew.'"

The soldier boy of that fateful morning lived to become a Castro colonist and brought his wife, Katherine, and their seven children to America. One of these seven children was Joe Ney, Sr., father of the Joe Ney of this sketch.

In his early manhood, the deceased was engaged for a while in business with his brother-in-law, Joseph Braden, in D'Hanis, under the firm name of Ney & Braden. Previous to that, however, he had become active in local politics, having filled out by appointment in 1882, the unexpired term of Ferdinand Niggli who had resigned the office of Sheriff to become a Deputy U. S. Marshall. Again in 1888, he was called upon to serve as Sheriff by filling out the unexpired term of F. Thumm. He was elected to that office in 1890, and filled the office by election for five consecutive terms. In the race of 1898, he and Fritz Frerichs tied in the general election. In the run-off Mr. Ney was elected. In the election of 1900, he declined to run and Fritz Frerichs was elected and served one term. In 1902 he again ran and was elected. He continued to be re-elected until 1910 when the office of Sheriff and Tax Collector was divided and he became Tax Collector, serving in that capacity for a period of another ten years, voluntarily retiring in 1920 by declining to run again for office. Few men ever had a longer or stronger following than he had throughout his long public career.

He was happily married to Miss Mary Reilly on May 22, 1883. To their union nine children were born. Five of these preceded their father in death. The four survivors are Ed Ney and William Ney of Hondo; Mrs. Earl L. O'Neill of Pettus, Texas; and Miss Adella Ney of Hondo. Several grandchildren also survive.

As well as a successful politician, Mr. Ney was a successful business man and despite a liberality that was often taken advantage of, he prospered in a financial way. He took an active interest in both business and civic affairs, and having a keen, analytic mind his counsel was always sought in public affairs and has proven helpful to many individuals. Useful as he was in public affairs, his greatest service was rendered to people in a private capacity known to few save himself and the beneficiaries of his generosity.

To say that such a man will be missed and mourned by many is to indulge in no meaningless flattery. A useful man whose hand was ever ready to help in time of need and whose mind and heart to offer good counsel in time of doubt is gone. May he rest in peace.

WITH THE BAPTISTS.

F above stands For the amendment; A, Against the amendment.

The above is a tabulation of the vote by precincts in Medina County. It will be noted that only one proposal, that to discount taxes, carried, and that by only four majority. Over the state, the vote seems to have been equally light, with all amendments carrying with the possible exception of No. 3, which provided for a return to the fee system.

ON IMPORTANT MISSION.

Dr. A. B. Connor, Director of the Texas Experiment Station System, and one of his assistants, Dr. Reynolds, were here the first of the week looking over the Fair Grounds property and gathering data with a view to recommending the conversion of the property into a State Experiment farm. What Dr. Connor's findings are will not be known until his recommendations are made. There are a number of stations at various points in Texas, but the nearest to Hondo are located at Winterhaven, in the Winter Garden District and at Beeville. Neither of these fit the type of soil found in the Hondo area, between the hilly breaks of the Edwards Plateau and the sandy area of the coastal plain. Neither are climatic conditions exactly the same.

It would seem, therefore, that this area, the choicest section of grand old Texas, would be entitled to favorable consideration when the state extends its field for further experimentation.

Prof. J. G. Barry, President of the Chamber of Commerce, assisted Dr. Connor in making his survey. If located here, it would give Hondo's vocational agricultural school valuable prestige, and might eventually be the means of locating a junior agricultural college here, an acquisition second only in importance to the "From the Hill Country to Deep Water" highway.

HONDO POST OFFICE TO MOVE.

After having been located on South Front Street, now Highway 90, for forty years or more, the Hondo postoffice will shortly be moved into the Hondo State Bank building on Bandera Avenue.

News was received here Monday of this week from the Post Office Department at Washington that the Bank building has been leased for that purpose. The lease on the present building expires on Sept. 14, and the presumption is that the office will be moved to the new location as soon thereafter as possession can be given by Mr. Alvin Britsch, the present tenant. We do not know where Mr. Britsch will re-locate the Bob Cat Cafe.

Since the Managing Editor first knew Hondo the post office has been located on the block south of the depot and for almost thirty-four years he has resided on the same block and it is going to be awkward for him to go across town instead of "just around the corner" for the mail.

We are not informed as to how many locations were offered, but the present location was underbid. It has housed the office for twenty-five years or more.

HONDO CHAPTER MASONS MEET.

Hondo Chapter No. 350 met in a called session last Monday night in response to an official visit by District Deputy Grand Visitor O. Dietert of San Antonio. Mr. Dietert was accompanied by Dr. Johnson, W. A. Miller and M. A. Forbes, all Chapter Masons well informed in the ritualistic work of the Chapter.

Mr. Dietert examined the books and accounts of Secretary H. E. Haass, and pronounced them well kept and the financial affairs of the Chapter in good condition.

In appropriate addresses by both Mr. Dietert and Dr. Johnson they offered timely and sound advice to the members to carry on the Chapter work. The home for aged Masons at Arlington is supported by the Chapter Lodges.

HONDO-D'HANIS SMEARS MACDONA CLUB 7 TO 2.

Castroville, Tex., Aug. 22.—The Hondo-D'Hanis All-Stars copped a 7 to 2 decision from the Pioneer Oilers of Macdonia here Sunday in a game which was the feature of the annual Catholic celebration.

Koch, All-Star twirler, kept the Oilers' hits well scattered, allowing more than one hit only in the ninth inning.

Jim Finger tripled with two on in the seventh inning for the outstanding blow in the All-Star attack.

Score by innings: R.H.E. Macdonia 000 010 001—2 9 4 Hondo-D'Hanis 400 000 30x—7 7 2 Batteries: Robertson and Kohler; Koch and Amos Finger.

SHIPMENTS.

Shipments of Hondo's two staple crops, corn and cotton, have been going out fast since the fiscal year opened up on August 1st. Fifty-two cars of corn have gone to market billed from Hondo. Forty-six of these were loaded locally and six from Dunlay.

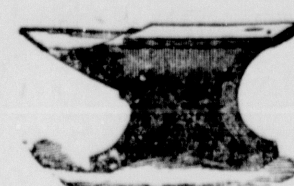

During the same period 364 bales of cotton have been shipped. Shipment of cotton has slowed up for some reason and there are 75 to 100 bales at the gin awaiting disposal. There has been no movement of broomcorn or maize thus far this season.

LUTHERAN LADIES AID.

We are requested to announce that the Lutheran Ladies' Aid Society will meet in regular session at the home of Mrs. Felix Hollmeier next Wednesday, September 1st. All members are urged to be present.

EXPERIMENTING.

By Clayton Rand.

It is a little funny how some merchants go on experimenting with new-fangled schemes.

Of course, big business men who can afford it are always trying out new ideas, but it is wiser for the little fellow to follow the beaten path—the way that is well proven.

I saw a merchant the other day frothing at the mouth about throwing some of his money on advertising. He had just been gypped on another scheme.

Stick to your editor and the long town newspaper and, in the long run, you'll be better satisfied with your advertising results.

HOW LABOR SITUATION AFFECTS THE FARMER.

Labor developments over America vitally concern the average farmer. It is to his interest that labor be sufficiently well paid to buy liberally of farm products. On the other hand, heavy wage increases may mean an advance in the price of commodities farmers buy. The following comment on this problem is by Editor Eugene Butler in The Progressive Farmer:

"Manufacturers usually increase prices as wages rise rather than lower profits. With farm production on the rise, there is likely to be a softening of farm prices right when wage increases are forcing up prices of commodities farmers buy.

"If farmers are to have fair share of the national income there must be a proper relationship between prices of farm commodities and prices paid by farmers. To maintain such a relationship there must be a national farm program having production control as its primary objective. It now seems, however, that a new farm bill will not be enacted during this session of Congress. Lacking organization, especially in the Cotton Belt, farmers have not been able to impress the need for immediate action on Congress.

"Since the new Triple A bill does not have the united support of farm organizations, and there is some doubt as to what the proposed program would cost the taxpayer, the bill is having rough sledding. It is thought that nothing will be done by the present Congress but that some sort of new Triple A bill will be passed in 1938."

A VACATION AT HOME.

For those who have been unable to take a vacation during the summer, the Baltimore Sun suggests that it is not yet too late to have all the thrills of a summer resort right at home. Here is how it may be done:

Move into the smallest bedroom in your house; if possible one immediately over the kitchen.

If your bed is soft and downy, put a couple of bricks in it.

Dig a hole in the garden, get into it and cover yourself up to the neck. When you get tired of this diversion, wash yourself off with the garden hose.

Don't have any clothes washed for two weeks.

Sit on a rough board in the hot sun and hold a baited fishing line in your hand.

If you wish to take a quiet nap in the afternoon, put a radio next to your bed and turn it on full blast.

In the evening, remove the screens from the bedroom windows so that the mosquitoes can get in to you.

Go up to the roof and expose yourself to the sun until you are nicely burned. Then take whatever exercises will make you stiff and sore.

When you have wearied of all this and wish to return to a normal life, send yourself a bill for $20 or $25 a week and don't forget to give a nice fat tip to the cook.—Selected.

SOYBEANS TAKE LEAD.

Production of soybean oil meal in 1936 exceeded the production of linseed oil meal for the first time in history, according to R. C. Ashby, associate chief in livestock marketing, University of Illinois. In his significant findings, he says:

"Production of soybean oil meal in the United States last year was listed as 688,000 tons as compared with 460,082 of linseed oil meal. The amazing increase in soybean oil meal (Continued on last page.)"

LACOSTE LEDGERETTES.
From The LaCoste Ledger.

A miscellaneous shower was given at the home of Mrs. William Bohl in LaCoste, Sunday, August 15th, honoring Miss Myrtle Bohl, a bride of the coming month. The hostesses were Mrs. Ernest Echtle, Mrs. Edward Pohl, Misses Meda Reicherzer, Ellen Bohl, Florence Hitzfelder and Helen Etter. Miss Florentina Bohl was in charge of the bride's book and after the guests had registered, a time was spent at cards. Mrs. O. E. Groff was awarded first prize, Mrs. George Jungman carried off second honors, and Miss Margaret Iltis was awarded low score prize.

CONCRETE WORK ON BRIDGE IS FINISHED.

The last of the concrete on the new bridge across Medina River was poured Tuesday and with a little cleaning up the contractors will be through with their work, but of course it will require some time for the concrete to set before the bridge is opened for traffic. The new bridge and a change in the road at the river crossing is a wonderful improvement over the old crossing and the winding road. Commissioner Bippert procured right-of-way and straightened the road from the bridge to a point well up on the bank. To do this it was necessary to make a considerable fill, but he had rather do this and make a good job of the crossing.

On Wednesday evening, August 18th, Mrs. George Jungman was honored with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Jos. Keller. Hostesses were Mrs. Adol Koehner, Mrs. Robt. Rihn and Mrs. Jos. Keller. Clyde Bader is proud to say that he is now 15 years of age. His birthday fell on Friday the 13th, but was celebrated Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Rihn. Clyde was honored with a tamala supper which was served to the following: Rev. Dean J. Lenzen, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bader, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Rihn and children, LaVerne and Elois, Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Rihn and son, Elroy, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tschirhart, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Ihnken, Mrs. Louisa Rihn and daughter, Emma, and Harry Haby and C. J. Mangold. They departed at a late hour wishing Clyde many more happy birthdays.

ENGINEER TO REPORT ON OIL SHALE MINE.

Extensive development of an oil shale mine from which ichthyol, phenol and other products may be produced in commercial quantities is the aim of the Carle Chemical Company, which will hold a stockholders' conference Tuesday at 7 P. M., at the office of the company, 812 Travis Building.

T. N. Picnot, San Antonio Public Service Company engineer who recently made a survey of the property which the company will develop, will make a report on his investigation. The mine is located 19 miles west of San Antonio on 343 acres of land owned by Frank T. Carle. Reports on the deposits of oil-bearing shale have been so optimistic, Carle says, that the capital stock of the company will be increased from $10,000 to $100,000 in order that a large enough plant can be built to distill 100 tons of the ore a day.—San Antonio Express.

AMERICAN BOY INTRODUCES A NEW FOOTBALL GAME.

In the early fall issues of THE AMERICAN BOY there'll be presented the story of a new game—six-man football—fast as professional football, wide open as basketball, thrilling as hockey!

The game came to life through the need of small schools for some substitute for 11-man football, which was too expensive. Stephen Epler, a Nebraska graduate student in athletics, developed the game of six-man football to meet this need. In six-man football anybody can score, the possibility of injury from mass plays is minimized, and the game is open enough for spectators to follow every exciting development.

The new game is a hit. New schools are taking it up every day. In coming issues THE AMERICAN BOY tells the world about this practical new game. In addition, it presents The American Boy Official Handbook, which can be obtained from the magazine at 20 cents a copy, or 15 cents when bought in bulk.

NOTE: Subscription prices of THE AMERICAN BOY will be raised in the near future. Send your subscription order at once to take advantage of the bargain rates now in effect: one year at $1.00 or three years at $2.00. Foreign subscription 50c a year extra. Send your name, address and remittance to THE AMERICAN BOY, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Mich. On newsstands the price is 15c a copy.

GET SETTLED ON THE FARM

By The Tumbleweed

It may not be a very handsome farm that becons you and your small family, but it will belong to you and most surely keep them and you off of the streets of the cities and you will be a King and Queen in your own right with no one to say you nay.

It doesn't pay to be on the move, for a rolling stone gathers no moss nor can you gather about you the nice things of life if you are always on the move.

The years of your lives are all too swiftly passing and you are getting older. Start now and pick out the prettiest farm that your meager purse can buy, go in debt for it if you must, but get one. Rest by the peacefulness of a singing stream and gather your food from the deep black soil and let the restless tide of the troubled old world sweep by.

Make your garden big and tend it lovingly for it will surely repay you with vegetables the year around for you will be one of the frugal people who will love to can it.

Buy young calves from the dairies and turn them loose in your pasture to grow into money. Get things around you, so many, that you will never again dare to think of moving and your children will grow up to call you blessed.

"Bright red apples, six or seven, in a basket, maybe eleven and a rocking chair or two, one for me and one for you. When the snow is busy draping each low bush with frosting, shaping every hummock like a cake, then it is we like to take time for chatting or remembering, times of some bright happy gathering; then it is we sit together, glad for blustering snowy weather.

FINE CAST HEADS FILM.

The M-G-M film, "They Gave Him A Gun", tense drama of war, love, sacrifice and loyalty, shows at the Colonial Theatre Wednesday and Thursday nights. The splendid cast is headed by Spencer Tracy, Gladys George and Franchot Tone, and includes Edgar Dearing, Mary Lou Dreen, Cliff Edwards and Charles Trowbridge. The picture unfolds the story of a meek lad whose experiences in the trenches turn him into a cowardly, ruthless killer of gangdom.

FAMOUS YOUNGSTERS ON SCREEN.

Penrod and Sam, Booth Tarkington's famous youngsters, step right out of the book and into the most enchanting picture you've seen in months, "Penrod and Sam", a First National comedy drama shows at the Colonial Theatre Monday and Tuesday nights. The cast includes Billy Mauch, Frank Craven, Spring Byington, Craig Reynolds, Harry Watson, Jackie Morrow, Philip Hurlie and Charles Halton.

Tschirhart Family Reunion Held at Castroville Draws 400

The descendants of Nikolaus and Katherine Meyer Tschirhart, Castro Colony pair, now numbering more than 400 recently held their annual reunion at Castroville. The above pictures were made at the time.

In the large picture are a group of the family at Wernette's Garden. The old gentleman is Joseph Tschirhart, aged 91, and one of the three children of the first family still living. The dancing couple are Mrs. Sebastian Tschirhart, 76, widow of Sebastian Tschirhart, one of the sons of the first couple, and Edward Tschirhart, 86, who is also one of the three living sons. The pair proved they are still able to dance with the youngsters.

THREE IN TUNE.

By Elizabeth Giles Wian.

The last guest had departed. In a relaxed mood I sat in my great, over-stuffed chair before the glowing gas-lights and seemed again to hear the musical program which the radio had brought to us. As my gaze wandered about the room it rested upon the beautiful Steinway grand piano as it stood silent and—it seemed to me—reproachful. In a remote corner stood the stately Victrola for which I had paid a handsome sum a few years ago, its only duty now the supporting of a superb Cloisonne vase. And then again my tired eyes rested on the handsome cabinet which enclosed that monarch of the air, the radio. All was silent, except for the ticking of the antique ormolu clock which stood, undisturbed by vibrations, on the piano.

Suddenly and softly the piano spoke: "The music we heard tonight was beautiful; it reminded me of the time when I was queen of the musical world, the greatest inspiration of the master musician, the sympathetic friend of every artistic soul. The harmonies hidden deep within me invited the touch of human hands upon my keys, and responsive to every mood, I seemed to bring the light of heaven into sad hearts, the radiance of love and beauty across shadowy pathways; while to the young and gay my rippling notes gave invitation to song or dance. The lovelorn and sad found consolation; the ambitious, the aspiring, found inspiration; mine was truly a great mission—in those days."

"Yes," ticked the clock, "I remember."

Then came a slight whirring sound, and the voice of the Victrola was heard in subdued tones: "And then I came, and it was a proud day for those who first acquired me. I caught the tones of human voices and of all musical instruments and imprisoned them in my records, to be given to people of every class and rank. I carried music into the homes of the lowly, or, encased in handsome apparel, I entered the mansions of wealth and brought the treasures of the masters. You were a little jealous of me then, Piano, but now, now my greatest service is to those who are poor and lonely and out of reach of the queen of the air, the electrically operated instrument that has usurped our place. Do you recall how awed the people were when it was proven that music could be captured and reproduced; how the youngsters danced with joy, and the elderly folk selected their favorite records and went back to the days of their youth?"

"Yes, yes, I remember," ticked the ormolu clock. "I was here, too, you know."

I was sure I had turned off the radio switch, but merging with the last note of the Victrola came a deep, thrilling undertone from the radio cabinet: "Why should you repine, my fellow-benefactors? Do you not realize that without you and the other musical instruments of all kinds, I would be nothing? Do you not know, dear Piano, that I stimulate artists the world over to accomplish their highest and best as pianists, so that they may send their beautiful music into every nook and corner of the civilized world? Do you not realize, indispensable Victrola, that in nearly every program sent out through me are heard the words, 'This is a Victor recording,' or 'This is electrically transcribed?' We are working hand in hand—three in tune."

"After all, I know my limitations," continued the Radio. "Lovers of music cannot create through me the expression of their own souls, as they can through you, proud Piano; nor can they sit beside me and command me to play the thing that best suits their moods, as they can with you, happy Victrola. My work is circumscribed; definitely outlined; I am timed, to the split second, on all I give out. True, my field is almost universal, but without you and your kinsfolk, how crippled I would be! I am merely the vendor of what you produce. We are all working together for the greatest good to the greatest number."

"Three in tune, three in tune, three in tune," ticked the little clock, happily, and it began dancing a two-step on top of the piano, so gaily, so recklessly, that it danced over the edge and fell to the floor with a clatter. A great, swelling chord seemed to come from all three instruments together. I sprang to my feet. The grandfather's clock in the ancient hall was chiming the midnight hour.

NESTER-BENDELE.

Miss Ethel Bendele and Mr. Arthur Nester, members of two well-known and highly respected Medina County families, were united in wedlock in a solemn ceremony performed at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, August 24, 1937, in St. John's Catholic Church of Hondo. The impressive double ring service was used, Rev. Paul Potgens officiating. He also officiated at the nuptial high mass. The choir sang the beautiful "Mass of the Guardian Angels" and at the offertory Mrs. Volney Boon and Mrs. Alfred Rath sang "O Salutaris Hostia" by Wiegand. Mrs. Boon also played the traditional bridal processional and recessional music on the organ.

Fern and potted plants marked the aisle leading to the Sanctuary, which was banked with floor baskets of bluebells and fern. The candle lit altars were adorned with white lilies and fern.

The bride entered with her father, Mr. Armin Bendele, Sr. Her bridal gown was of exquisite white lace over satin, made on princess lines with a deep-V decolletage and elbow length sleeves. Tiny satin-covered buttons extended to the waistline in back and the skirt ended in a short train. Her finger-tip tulle veil was held to the head with a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations. The bride's only ornament was an antique pin of yellow gold belonging to her mother.

Miss Thelma Bendele, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Miss Erna Rose Huegele of D'Hanis, niece of the groom, was bridesmaid. They were costumed alike in attractive navy blue corded chiffon redingotes over pink taffeta and off the face hats of blue felt with little face veils. They carried colonial bouquets of pink asters. Little Miss Helen Ann Bendele, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a floor-length frock of pink taffeta, the hem, short sleeves and neck being outlined with ruffling of the taffeta. In her hair she wore two pink bows and her old-fashioned nosegay was of pink and white asters.

The groom was attended by his cousin, Harold Nester, of D'Hanis as best man and by Clinton Jagger as groomsmen. Immediately after the nuptial mass a wedding breakfast was served to the bridal party, members of the immediate families and several guests, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bendele in Hondo. The home was arranged with vases of roses. The large square wedding cake, iced in white and embossed with pink sugar-spun roses, centered the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Nester left by auto for a bridal trip to Dallas and other large Texas cities. The bride wore for travel a navy blue alpaca suit with three-quarter length coat, and navy blue accessories. On their return they will receive their friends in their recently completed home near D'Hanis.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Nester of D'Hanis and is an industrious farmer of that section. His bride is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armin Bendele, Sr., of Dunlay and is a young lady of sterling qualities. The young couple are well liked and have countless friends in Medina County who wish them happiness in their wedded life.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmet de Montel and family left last Friday for their home in Tyler after a week's visit with his parents, Judge and Mrs. Ed de Montel.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Brucks left Thursday morning for their home in Chicago, Illinois, after a week's visit with Mr. Brucks' parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Brucks, and family. They arrived last Thursday evening after making the trip by auto.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gilliam and two daughters, Peggy and Evelyn Jane, of Corpus Christi spent Sunday here with their parents, Mrs. Isaac Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Gilliam. The two little girls remained here for a more extended visit.

Miss Katharine Eubanks, who has been attending summer school at Texas University in Austin, arrived Wednesday for a visit with her brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Reed Eubanks and baby, before going to her home in Corpus Christi.

Mr. E. G. Pope on last Saturday received a shipment of 1100 goats from Langtry. This is the third shipment he has received this month, having received 645 previously. This considerable flock of 1745 Angoras are being distributed among local goat breeders, and should help materially reduce Medina County's surplus brush.

QUIHI NOTES.

And Esau was a cunning hunter, a man of the field; and Jacob was a plain man, dwelling in tents. Gen. 25-27.

Every child is born with a bundle of problems; with twins there is a double bundle. Here the Lord not only "smiles", but "laughs" rather loudly, as one bundle-problem-impressed father remarked. Health, nutrition, growth, medical care, clothing, day and night attention (that lonely midnight race-track, in particular), toys, play-mates, and what not, here the problem bundles unfold and often get on the nerves. The selection of names is a minor problem, yet a problem, and often leads into a shoreless sea of discussions and difference. The twins in our text made that problem simple. One, Esau, was named for his looks; the other, Jacob, for his aggressive position at birth. School-age opens another bundle of problems. What school, what teacher, what conveyance, often what boarding place, what school-master, what results? Some children are easy going, others difficult to handle, some hopskip-and-jump from one grade into the other with little difficulty and urging, others need dragging and pulling and barely hang on in the rear; some love and appreciate the teacher, others blister with criticism; many can adapt themselves to the work, the pupils, the games, the general school atmosphere, while as many fret and fume and kick it out, lie it out, fight it out; some are sunshine and incentive to others, making friends for life, not a few are a veritable thunder-cloud and a rumbling volcano, with the inscription written in heavy lettering on the pugnacious face, Danger! Look-out! Some children are little understood, receive too much or too little co-operation and attention, often there is undue interference and false encouragement, more often the matter is never discussed with the Lord and all is left to human, fallible makeshift. Problems weighing heavily down upon a heart—somewhere. And the main problem we have not yet touched. Esau a hunter, Jacob a plain man, hanging around in the tents. "What manner of child shall this be?" What position can he fill in life? Who and what makes the choice? How can you arrive at a fair decision? An old and ever new problem. Often unsolved. That's food for another chapter.

Mrs. F. Nietenhoefer suffered painful burns while operating with that dangerous gasoline liquid, so useful and necessary for many purposes, if kept away from an open flame. The proper remedies were at hand and we trust that she will soon be over the shock and pain.

We found Mrs. F. F. Mumme in fairly good health at our last visit, but we had been entirely unaware that she had been ailing for quite a while during the last weeks. We are glad of the fine outcome.

Also Mr. Emil Lindburg we found on the highway in fine spirit after a hard tussle with some gastric ailment with alarming symptoms. How many reasons have we to be thankful!

We have heard the good news that Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Saathoff are the proud possessors of another little newcomer in their home. Smiling hearts and congratulations are in order. And thanks to the Lord.

Carpenters and painters have been playing their trade of late at various residences and made some pretty transformations. Maybe we have not seen them all but we mention the homes we know: Mrs. Joe Horn, Mrs. L. Boehle, C. H. Fuos, D. Lindeburg, Ernest Nietenhoefer and Hy. Loessberg. Expensive, but often a matter of necessity and beauty.

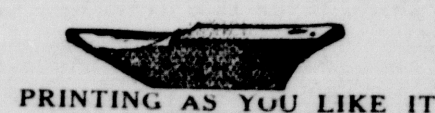

Once more our catechumens will sing at the service next Sunday. Come and enjoy it. They are hard at work, and with a joyous mood, to finish the last stretch of the road. God willing, they shall be confirmed on the second Sunday in September. Remember that date.

Mr. W. C. Lipscomb of Dallas, Mr. Carl Abel of San Antonio, Mr. Charles Schmidt of Devine, and Misses Bettie, Lenora and Georgia Schmidt of Hondo were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Schmidt at the Lipscomb Ranch near Helotes Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt were formerly from Biry and are now located on the Lipscomb Ranch. The barn on the Jacob Saathoff farm at Quihi was completely destroyed by fire on Wednesday night, August 18th. Besides the building a quantity of corn and some other contents were a complete loss. Origin of the fire is unknown.

Miss Thelma Lynch was hostess a well appointed contract bridge party at her home Tuesday afternoon, entertaining four tables of guests. The rooms had a decorous color scheme carried out in the flowers of purple bachelor buttons and yellow summer chrysanthemums. High score prize was won by Mrs. B. Taylor, second prize by Mrs. C. Johnson and cut prize by Mrs. H. Schweers. The hostess served delicious refreshments of sandwiches, cookies and iced tea. The persons included Mesdames Roy Pfeil, E. Noonan, Volney Boon, J. M. Fing, H. J. Meyer, Fletcher Davis, F. Schweers, Ed. Cameron, L. Grube, Robert Kollman, L. E. Heath, A. H. Schweers, N. C. Johnson, O. Taylor, and N. Nance and C. Canery of San Antonio.

A joyful family gathering was Sunday, August 22nd, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Gilliam with all their children and a number of their grandchildren spent the day with them. Those here for the many occasion were Mr. and Mrs. George Gilliam and daughters, Corpus Christi, Mr. and Mrs. T. Gilliam of Pearsall, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Gilliam and children of Cincinnati, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Ash Gilliam and children of Hondo and Mrs. Panchita Thompson and daughters of Hondo, to say nothing of the proud parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Gilliam.

We failed to note at the previous time that Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bendele and children motored down to Corpus Christi week before last and while on their trip visited a number of intermediate and adjacent points. Mr. Bendele says it was a tremendously hot but not enough to spoil the pleasures of the trip. A magnificent cotton crop was made over most of the territory he visited, an it being rapidly harvested. The summer drouth, however, has cut feed crop short and without rains time for fall crops feed is going to be scarce.

Will Grant, delivery man and general factotum at the E. R. Leinweber Co. store, deserves the belt as champion rat catcher. Thursday night last week he set two traps in about two feet of each other. Friday morning he had three rats, one of the traps having caught two at one time. If any one can beat this Will would like for them to come around and tell him how it's done.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schweers received word that their son, Milton, Houston received a serious eye injury on Tuesday of this week. He was trying to start a motor boat when the rope flew up into his face, the knotted end striking his eye. The injury was such that it is feared that he may lose the sight of that eye.

The Wednesday Night Bridge Club composed of eight players met at the home of Dr. and Mrs. O. B. Taylor this week for their regular party. High score prizes were awarded to Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Meyer. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. L. Heath, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kollman, Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Meyer and Dr. and Mrs. O. B. Taylor.

AN ANSWER TO AN OPEN LETTER.

In the last issue of the Hondo Anvil Herald an open letter written by J. Frank Jungman was printed in which he attempted to discourage the idea of Hondo incorporating into a city. He asked, or invited, an answer and I feel it a duty to answer in that I took part in the discussion for incorporation at the Chamber of Commerce meeting.

First, I wish to take exception to his remark about the propriety of the Chamber of Commerce allowing such a discussion in its meetings. He evidently has never been connected with a Chamber of Commerce or he would never have made any such remark. The primary purpose of a Chamber of Commerce is to foster a program looking to the welfare of its city and what subject could be more vital than a pro and con discussion of city incorporation?

Mr. Jungman also stated that the citizens of Hondo should be proud of the "distinction" of being the largest unincorporated town in Texas. If it is advantageous to be incorporated then the good citizens of Hondo go on record as being proud of existing in an unprogressive community. To me, that is nothing of which to boast or be proud, if true.

Hondo is badly in need of sanitary sewerage, an improved water system, improved fire protection, city controlled policing and ordinances, and a just distribution of expenses for operating as a quasi-city.

As it is, Hondo is sitting on a potential disease epidemic that may break out at any time unless preventive steps are taken by sanitary sewerage. The County Health Officer will bear me out in this statement, I believe. The open toilets, and conditions as they are, will eventually seep through the earth and enter our water supply and contaminate it, causing the death of some and necessitating a new water source. Walk along our streets and alleys, in some places, and you can't help but notice the odor of filth, due to lack of proper sewerage disposal.

Hondo has a water system and fire protection but it is not adequate. The water mains are too small (two inch) to give adequate pressure and thereby hindering our fire protection. If this was remedied our fire insurance key rate would drop from forty-two cents to a nominal sum. San Antonio has a key rate of four cents and Hondo has forty-two cents, and all this is due to our not being incorporated because if we were incorporated we could remedy the cause and save money in the form of fire insurance premiums. This one item of saving would more than justify incorporation in saving money.

If Hondo was incorporated the city could regulate by proper city ordinances the all-night drinking houses, stop speeding through the city, keep stray live stock from roaming our streets and premises at will, improve our parking conditions, and keep what order might be needed within the city limits.

As conditions now are, a few public spirited citizens carry the whole expense of paying for a night-watchman and pay for the street lights we now have. With incorporation this expense would be equally distributed among the property owners and additional street lights could be added where needed.

Hondo property owners pay in fire insurance premiums forty-two cents on every one hundred dollars valuation as a penalty because of the deficiency of our water system, poor fire apparatus, no building law, no official city marshal, and because of our fire hazards due to the kind and the manner in which buildings are constructed in Hondo.

What would this "great" expense be in the form of taxes if Hondo was incorporated? Hondo could save most of that forty-two cents in insurance premiums if incorporated by correcting the present water system through proper city ordinances. With the unusually fine street layout that Hondo now has there would be no necessity of a large bond issue for street improving. A city owned sewerage system would require a bond issue but that should pay for itself over a period of years. Bear in mind that no bond can be issued until a majority of the property owners vote in favor of it. The actual operating expenses of a city are small; the night-watchman or city marshal and the street lights are about the only continual expense; the Mayor and two City Councilmen serve without salaries. The city taxes could be collected by the County Tax Collector for a nominal percent of collections.

The people of Hondo could, through incorporation, run their own city administration and take it out of the hands of the over-worked County Commissioners. They could act as a unit, administer to their own wants and welfare, advertise to the world their advantages and invite others to come in and share their delightful city with them.

Respectfully,
FRANK X. VANCE.

Two polo games are to be played at Fort Clark, Texas, on August 29th and 31st, 1937, at 4:00 P. M. each day by the Fort Clark Polo Team and General Jesus Jayme Quiñone's Mexican Army Polo Team. These two teams played July 4th and 5th, 1937, in Villa Acuna, Mexico. Both games were won by Fort Clark but it is understood the Mexican team is now much stronger and bet-ter mounted. Both games will be played on the grass polo field which is one of the best in the state. Mr. Ted Voight of San Antonio will be the referee.

BEAUTY AND AMATEUR CONTESTS HELD.

Belles of Hondo, ranging from tiny tots to college co-eds, were in competition at the school auditorium last Friday night in several contests sponsored by the local Parent-Teacher Association.

The first event was a Shirley Temple contest in which little maids from two to twelve years of age were eligible. Margaret Ann Renken, curly-haired 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Renken of Hondo, was the winner over a group of about fifteen attractive youngsters. She was presented as prize a duplicate dress of one worn by the world's most popular movie star, Shirley Temple.

In the beauty contest, open to unmarried girls, competition was stiff and selection of "Miss Hondo" was difficult. Miss Ginger Fusselman, pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fusselman of Hondo and a 1937 graduate of Hondo High School, won the coveted title. She is eligible to compete in the state-wide contest to be held in San Antonio in October.

The winner of the amateur contest is also eligible to enter the State contest. Miss Susie Muennink, talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Muennink of Hondo, won first place with her tap dancing routine. Other contestants in this group were girls except one young boy violinist, Master A. J. Cook. Their performances included singing and instrumental selections.

The finalists in the contest for "Miss Texas" and in the state-wide amateur contest will be eligible to enter the national contest and will receive screen tests.

Orceneth Fly, Jr., was master of ceremonies for the local entertainment and Mrs. C. D. Sadler was the piano accompanist for the contestants and also played the promenade music.

The winners were chosen by three male judges.

WARD-FUSSELMAN.

A quiet but impressive wedding was solemnized at 8:30 P. M. Saturday, August 21, 1937, in the Methodist parsonage of Hondo, when Miss Billie Fusselman of Hondo became the bride of Mr. Milton Ward of Freer. Rev. W. S. Highsmith, pastor, officiated at the ring ceremony. The only attendant was Miss Elsie Smith of Alice, Texas.

The bride wore a tailored suit of navy blue summer wool with a white lace blouse and black accessories. Miss Smith's frock was of black crepe made on princess lines with ecru lace collar and cuffs.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple motored west on an undivulged destination and from there they went to Freer where they will make their home. Mr. Ward is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ward of Yancey and is an employee in the oil fields at Freer. The bride, the second youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fusselman of Hondo, was honor graduate of Hondo High School in 1933 and for the past few years has been an employee of the WPA in both Cotulla and Alice, Texas.

Their many Medina County friends extend congratulations and best wishes for their married life.

R. U. ATKINS DIES.

Rufus Ulysses Atkins, 63, of Natalia, died in Hinds, Ill., August 23. Atkins was a second lieutenant in Company M, First Texas Volunteer Infantry, and served in the Spanish-American war.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Kate Atkins, and a brother, Hugh Atkins, both of Natalia; three sisters, Mrs. Ollie Akers and Mrs. Ned Sweeney, both of San Antonio, and Mr. Belle Williams of Ranger.

Funeral service will be held in San Antonio Thursday afternoon with Rev. J. C. Ramsey of Taft and Chaplain Swanson officiating.—San Antonio Express.

Word was received by P. C. Jagge here Thursday of the death of his sister, Miss Lenora Jagge, 43, which occurred in San Antonio on that day. Funeral services will be held tomorrow (Saturday) at 8:45 A. M. from Zizik-Kearns Parlors and at 9 A. M. at St. Joseph's Church, San Antonio. Interment will be made in San Fernando Cemetery No. 2.

Hondo was largely represented at the Castroville celebration last Sunday, the D'Hanis-Hondo ball fans, attracted by the ball game of the afternoon, augmenting the number who went for the celebration itself. Having once lived in Castroville this occasion draws you back like a magnet, no matter how much strange faces predominate.

Messrs. Alfred Schlentz, Albert Saathoff, and son, Edgar, Milton Leinweber and H. H. Saathoff, the parties who went to Detroit after the Fly School bus last week, returned with it yesterday after having driven it 1500 miles. The bus is a Ford of the latest approved model, and looks like the children are assured comfortable travel.

Among the vast throng at the funeral of the late Joe Ney last Saturday morning were many people from a distance, some long time friends and many relatives from far and near. Obviously, it would be impossible to mention all and we forego the attempt—hoping those among them who are our readers will understand.

JOHNNY CROUCH CARRIES OFF SOUTHERN A. A. U. HONORS.

John Russell Crouch, better known over the country as "Hondo", and a member of the Fort Worth Y. M. C. A. swimming team, carried away the swim honors at the Southern A. A. U. swimming meet held at New Orleans, La., last week-end. Coach Tarleton of Fort Worth took six boys to the meet and topped five first places, including the 400 relay. The Texans won first places in the relay, 50 yards, 220-yards, 100-yards, and 440-yard backstroke. They placed second in the breast-stroke and 440 yards.

Johnny Crouch was high point man of the meet with 14½ points. The New Orleans Times-Picayune had the following to say about Johnny following both the Saturday and the Sunday contests:

"Bob Tarleton, Arthur Lipka, Merrel Clubb and John 'Hondo' Crouch started the meet off by taking the 400-yard relay in 4 minutes 3.6 seconds, which bettered the recognized mark of 4:06.1, though a 4:03.2 effort was turned in up at the Gramercy meet recently. The Texans themselves swam the relay in 3:57 a couple of weeks ago at Dallas.

"Then Bob Tarleton came back to capture the 220-yard freestyle event in 2 minutes 31.3 seconds to beat the old mark by 4.5 seconds. That was the feature race of the day with Tarleton, Paul Smith of the Y. M. C. A. and 'Hondo' Crouch racing neck and neck all the way. Crouch had just won the 50 and because it was getting late and the officials wanted to finish before dark Crouch was forced to jump back in the water shortly after the 50 and go in the 220. The race was decided in the last 20 yards. Smith had a slight lead with Tarleton and Crouch a couple of feet behind. Tarleton stepped on the gas to nip Smith at the wire—or rather rope—by inches, with Crouch a jam-up third."

"Coach J. F. Tarleton of Fort Worth really has himself a jam-up team of swimmers. In the rough lake water his relay boys were timed for the 100 as follows: Tarleton, 58.8; Lipka, 7:01; Clubb, 1:01, and Crouch 58, unofficially. Pretty fair swimming, under the conditions.

"Tarleton and Crouch plane like Weissmuller in 'Tarzan' when they are leveling.

Johnny Crouch has won so much Worth made his bid for the 100-yard title early. He took the lead and held it, winning as he pleased."

Johnny Crouch has won so much favorable publicity for Hondo both by his name and his swimming feats that the Hondo Chamber of Commerce ought to build him a house in which to exhibit all his medals.

G. C. Heckard and daughter, Ruth, of 1451 College St. Beaumont, Texas, were visitors in Hondo Aug. 26th and 27th. Mr. Heckard is Traveling Representative for the San Antonio Express and Evening News. His daughter Ruth who is age 10 is in the 6th grade and enjoys the pleasure of having 5 years of straight A report cards and is going to try to finish school with that record. She recently won the Spelling contest in her city conducted over the Radio. She has spent the past two weeks traveling throughout South West Texas making a scrap book for her school work of her vacation.

Those from here who attended the funeral of Mrs. Anna Pingenot in Eagle Pass Monday were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Batot, Mr. Leo Batot, Mr. F. Batot, Miss Etta Batot, Mrs. Aug. Weynand, Mrs. Mina Meyer and J. B. Huegele.

CHINA'S HORROR GROWS

Thousands Die in Unofficial War . . . Senate Confirms Black Appointment . . . House Debates Deficiency Bill

Declared or Not, It's War

SHANGHAI'S "war" of 1932 was a second-rate movie sham battle compared with what's going on over there now. The city of 3,500,000 inhabitants and its environs are a scene of destruction, terror, flames and death on a mass scale the horror of which is unthinkable.

Thousands upon thousands of civilians lie dead, dying and wounded, and the toll increases day after day. No estimate has even been attempted to determine the amount of casualties among the Chinese and Japanese fighting forces. Indeed such an estimate today might be woefully inadequate tomorrow, for reports tell of whole brigades being shot or blown to bits in a single encounter.

Square mile after square mile, especially in the native Chapel district, has been gutted by fires that rise in the wake of bombs and artillery shells. Millions of men, women and children face slower, even more terrible death by hunger, for who is to bring supplies from the outlying farm fields while the whole area is under terrific fire?

Even in the International Settlement life is fleeting, insecure, for bombs and shells drop there, too. And with 1,000,000 refugees inside to be fed, shops are rapidly locking their doors to protect their wares from rioters.

As this is written, the Chinese land forces, outnumbering the Japanese four to one, are forcing the invaders slowly back to the Whangpoo in fierce ground fighting. Whether the Japanese reinforcements will be able to turn the tide of battle is problematical. At the same time Japanese warships—half the entire Japanese fleet must be in the Whangpoo—are showering exploding shells upon huge concentrations of Chinese soldiers.

Eye-witnesses reported that the Japanese had concentrated some 40 destroyers, six cruisers, four dreadnaughts, an airplane carrier and many gunboats in the rivers near Shanghai. Only through a clever maneuver did the Chinese prevent them from gaining the upper reaches of the Whangpoo and shelling Shanghai from the rear. The Chinese, in a surprise attack, captured six Japanese merchant ships, sailed them into the heart of the channel and scuttled them, preventing passage.

American authorities in Shanghai decided upon immediate evacuation by the 3,800 Yanks living there. The danger which confronted them was emphasized when stray Japanese bombs blasted the American Baptist mission, leaving the fate of 20 persons inside in grave doubt.

United States marines were on hand, of course, to offer what protection they could to American nationals, and reinforcements were quick in leaving San Diego, Calif., to join them. The U. S. S. Augusta, flagship of Uncle Sam's China squadron, lay in the Whangpoo alongside the Japanese ships. With shrapnel flying about their ears, Americans were getting out of China on every available ship.

It was not considered likely that President Roosevelt would invoke the neutrality act so long as no "official" state of war between Japan and China existed. This would involve the declaration of embargoes on arms and on the extension of credits to both nations, a situation which would be of definite aid to the aggressor, Japan, since China is in far greater need of war materials.

Japan continued to "defend" itself, officially, from the wicked Chinese, whom its foreign office characterized as "prejudiced." However, the "defense" was being carried on in the other fellow's back yard. Japanese authorities continued to insist that they meant no harm to the Chinese people, and that their aim was still for the co-operation of China, Manchukuo, and Japan. They also revealed that voluntary contributions to the nation's war chest, coming from all over Japan, had passed the $2,500,000 mark.

Question Black's Eligibility

THE senate confirmed the President's nomination of Sen. Hugo L. Black of Alabama to the Supreme court, 63 to 16, but only after a bitter fight, following which the minority protested that the confirmation had been railroaded through.

Six Democrats and ten Republicans voted against Black. The Democratic insurgents, led by Edward R. Burke (Neb.) and Royal S. Copeland (N. Y.) based their objections principally upon charges that he was associated with the Ku Klux Klan, and therefore unfitted to sit with the high tribunal for reasons of racial and religious prejudice. The Republicans, notably William E. Borah (Idaho), argued that he could not legally become a member of the court.

That his eligibility might be tested before the court itself was a possibility when Attorney Albert Levitt, Appointee in judicial mien.

former special assistant to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, filed a plea for leave to pray an order for Black to show affirmatively why he should be permitted to serve as an associate justice. He raised the same legal questions as the Republican minority had:

1. That Black could not become a justice because during his term as a senator the Summers retirement act was passed, permitting justices to retire at full pay. The Constitution provides that no member of congress shall be appointed to an office which was created or the emolument of which was increased during his membership in congress.

2. That no vacancy existed on the Supreme court anyway, since Justice Willis Van Devanter had only retired, not resigned, and may still be called for judicial service by the chief justice.

It was expected that the Black appointment would become political fodder in the next election campaigns.

Grist from the Mill

AFTER months of wrangling over the Supreme court measure, the wages and hours bill, the ever-normal-granary bill and other administration "musts" the house of representatives began to act upon some other legislation in haste, with a view to adjournment some day, some time.

The house appropriations committee reported out the year's last "deficiency" measure to supply funds for government operations overlooked in the regular budget. It called for $73,500,000; two previous deficiency measures, totaling nearly a billion, had been passed. The committee turned down requests from the executive department for $43,000,000 in additional appropriations. Some of the appropriations recommended were $23,000,000 for new buildings, $3,000,000 for federal participation in the New York world's fair and $1,500,000 for participation in the San Francisco world's fair. Funds for the operation of the Jones-Bankhead farm tenancy act and for naval building were denied altogether; appropriations for payments to federal land banks and the Federal Farm Mortgage corporation, and the national labor relations board were sliced severely.

The house passed the low-cost housing bill, but with so many alterations that it had to go to a joint committee for the differences to be straightened out before it could be sent to the White House. The senate had approved a bond issue of $700,000,000; the house shaved it to $500,000. The house also raised the percentage of funds which local communities must contribute to projects; increased the limitation of cost of a single dwelling to $5,000 or $1,000 a room; and cut the limit of any one state's share in the funds from 20 per cent to 10 per cent.

The house also passed a bill designed to plug the tax loopholes by which, it was alleged, the wealthy have been, legally or illegally, avoiding the payment of income taxes which they have a moral if not a legal right to pay. The extremely complicated bill carried unanimously after only two hours' consideration.

Strange Doings at Sea

FOUR insurgent airplanes dropped 25 bombs upon the Danish vessel Edith and sank it in the Mediterranean, came the report from Barcelona. The crew of 20 and a French observer for the non-intervention control were rescued by two fishing boats. The owners of the vessel, in Copenhagen, said it was their twentieth ship to be captured or bombed by the rebels.

The captain of the French freighter Peame reported to authorities that a torpedo had been fired upon his ship by an unidentified submarine which floated beside his ship for several minutes off the Tunisian coast.

When the Spanish tanker Campeador was sunk in the Mediterranean, the rebel command issued a communique taking the full blame. But the captain of the tanker insisted an Italian destroyer sank it.

Campaign Aftermath

TURNED down by the house rules committee when he demanded a special investigation, Rep. Bertrand H. Snell of New York, Republican floor leader, has carried direct to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings his charges of violation of the federal corrupt practices act by the Democratic national committee. The charges arise from National Chairman James A. Farley's ingenious method of replenishing the party's treasury by selling Democratic convention books, autographed by President Roosevelt, for $250 each.

In a letter to Cummings, Snell charged:

1. That sales of the book, autographed by the President, in 1936, at $250 each constitute an illegal collection of campaign funds and a direct violation of section 313 of the corrupt practices act.

2. That a Colorado man was the "victim of eleven specific acts of reprisals" by the resettlement administration and threats to "put him out of business" since his refusal last October to subscribe $500 to the book sales campaign.

3. That a New Yorker was approached by a Democratic campaign committee agent with promise of White House intervention in return for a $25,000 subscription or retainer. Snell attached affidavits and a synopsis of the evidence he had furnished the house rules committee.

Rebels Press Santander

REPORTS from the insurgent command said that 35 villages and 1,000 prisoners had been captured by the rebels in their drive on Santander and the tiny remaining slice of the northern Spanish coast held by the government. The government admitted that some advances had been made, but refused to concede that General Franco's forces were threatening the main defenses of the Santander area.

Franco, in his new drive, was using the same tactics which eventually brought about the downfall of Bilbao after a siege of many months. Bombing planes and artillery were pounding the fortifications while other airplanes poured machine gun fire upon trenches.

Insurgents planned the Santander advance to require as little manpower as possible, so as to leave enough men at the Madrid front to start a separate offensive there if necessary. They admitted the loyalists had caught them napping with an offensive west of Madrid in July, causing them to abandon the Santander drive temporarily, but declared that "That will not happen this time."

Rumor Has Farley Quitting

IS "Genial Jim" Farley going to resign as postmaster general to become the executive head of an automobile firm? That's what his friends in Washington say, and Jim has not denied the rumor, as he has promptly denied similar rumors in the past. Farley, it is said, seeks to rehabilitate his personal fortunes. As postmaster general he has lost $10,000 a year over his salary of $15,000 and is, according to his friends, today in debt.

Jim Farley

The story went that he would become an executive of the Pierce-Arrow Motor corporation, that 5,000 new shares of stock would be delivered to him, and that he would also be allowed to share in the $100,000 stock purchase warrants.

Wonder if the Pierce-Arrow sales force is watching the charts for Maine and Vermont?

French Lifeline Periled?

THE Paris press disclosed that France considers herself in danger of losing her possessions in the Near East and of having her air route connections with the Far East severed because of revolts in Syria.

Censorship of the news out of Syria is strict, but some reports have leaked through which indicate the revolt recently quelled was a serious one. According to one dispatch the population is extremely dissatisfied with the terms of the Franco-Syrian treaty signed last September 10. As soon as the proper machinery can be set up, the treaty provides, a unified Syrian state will be formed from four of the five mandate areas which the French hold in the Levant.

Large sections of the population differ in religion from the Syrians in Damascus. They are willing to be governed by a foreign nation like France, as they have been for centuries, but they do not want to be subjected to the will of the Damascus politicians.

Protests Lease of Ships

LA NACION, influential newspaper of Buenos Aires, Argentina, caused some stir by vigorously protesting the proposed leasing of obsolete United States warships to Brazil, declaring that such an act would upset the balance of naval power in South America.

Secretary of State Hull had written a letter to the senate naval committee asking congressional authority for the leasing of over-age war vessels to South American republics. When the Argentinean objections were noted, President Roosevelt pointed out that the vessels in question were obsolete, and were only to be used for training.

On Tiptoe

By Stewart Edward White

Simmins Brought the Bags From the Car.

"I have some sports clothes and heavy tramping boots, if you mean me," said she. "And I'm glad we're going to stay. I adore these great trees. I want to live with them. I believe I could stay here forever."

Grimstead lay prone and lighted a cigar. His object was in way of attainment. Here was a little human interest. Sulks gone. For the first time forward and not backward looking. To be sure Gardiner was not living up to expectations; but that was a small matter. The Pirate Chief had not particularly set his mind on Gardiner, though Burton thought he had. Gardiner was good looking, and—as the Second in Command—available on the instant, so he was drafted into service as a hoped-for antidote. If results could be procured without him, as now seemed possible, Gardiner could go hang. Pirate Chiefs are always ruthless, just like that. What Grimstead wanted to do was to rid himself of his two especial hates. He was accustomed to being attacked in the newspapers, and shuddered at by the altruistic, and ambushed by his fellow pirates, and double-crossed by his fellow-club members, and being grand-juried, and all that; and he took it with a good-natured growl. They were part of life as he understood it. But two things really worried him, had the power to penetrate to his inner self-poise. Or, to speak more freely, two things got under his skin; could get his goat. One of these was Punketty-Snivvles; the other was Willie Smeed. They were both always underfoot. Punketty-Snivvles we have met. It is not necessary to draw a full-length portrait of Willie. He was a nice enough boy, but the symbol of his exterior meant things to the Pirate Chief that were perhaps not entirely justified by essential facts. Lots of people have remarkably sumptuous manners, play the ukulele, wear embroidered monograms on the left sleeves of silk shirts, affect small, downy, light mustaches, take a personal interest in flower arrangements, are authorities on color schemes, dress always in light or pastel tones, and are for all that admirable, efficient, forceful and lovable human beings. Lots of grown people besides golf professionals are called Willie and get away with it nobly. But not with Pa able clothes and stout boots of the summer camper. Then they all tramped down to the road to see the fallen giant.

A full-grown redwood tree is impressive beyond the reach of description when it is standing upright in its proper way; but it fails to impress the faculties of awe as deeply as when it lies prone. The height of an average room is ten feet; the thickness of this tree then, as it lay before them, would fill two stories of a house; the roof of a bungalow would just have been visible over it; to mount to its side a flight of thirty steps would have been required. The little group stood looking at it in the silence of awe. Its length extended at a long angle across the road and far into the forest on the other side. The hole from which it had been torn was as wide as a city garden plot, and half full of water.

"Looks like the shell hole of a Big Bertha," remarked Davenport.

"Were you in France?" demanded Burton quickly.

"I saw a little of it."

"How in time will they ever clear that out of the road?" interposed Grimstead, who was following his own line of thought.

"I think they'll probably have to build a new road around it," suggested the young man.

Grimstead measured the difficulties with his eye.

"At that rate it will be some time before there is any through traffic," he predicted.

They ventured a few feet into the forest and saw that somehow, in spite of a few evidences of fallen limbs or splintered branches, of matted brake or twisted bush, the woodland had recovered marvelously its customary green softness. But the underbrush was still too water-laden to tempt them far. They swung back into the meadow past the cars. Grimstead stared curiously at Davenport's little machine. By daylight it looked even tinier than ever.

"Make her yourself?" inquired Grimstead.

"Such as she is," acknowledged Davenport carelessly. "I didn't use much paint with her looks because she is just an experiment. I'm trying some thing out."

"You said she was electric driven," queried Grimstead.

"Yes."

"Isn't that a curious thing for a man like you on this sort of a trip? What's the matter with gas?"

"Nothing the matter with gas, except that it costs money, and is sometimes hard to get."

"And I suppose charging a battery costs nothing," struck in Gardiner scornfully, "and there are charging stations everywhere."

"Often enough for my purpose," rejoined Davenport with entire good humor.

"I should think you'd want more speed and power," observed Grimstead.

"Geared as she is I can make fifty an hour on a paved road; and that means power for anything within reason—I haven't had it brake-tested; but it must develop between thirty five and forty-five horsepower."

"Your battery can't have a long charge life at that rate," pursued Grimstead. "I don't see how you keep charged. How many hours do you make?"

"I don't know; I haven't determined that yet. That's what I'm experimenting on."

Grimstead paused to get this straight. "Do I understand you to say that you are running on the original charging?" he asked, "that you have not recharged since starting?"

"That's it."

"Where did you start from? How long have you been out?"

"Left San Rafael about three weeks ago." He stooped to examine a dial. "Been just eleven hundred miles."

"On one charge!" exploded Gardiner.

"You'll have to show me!" Davenport straightened up and looked at him coldly.

"On the contrary," he pointed out, "I do not have to show you."

"You interest me very much, Mr. Davenport," interposed Grimstead, secretly gesturing Gardiner to keep quiet. "Among other things, as you perhaps know, I have very extensive hydro-electric interests, and am in consequence somewhat of an electrical engineer. What you tell me indicates that your new battery—I assume it is your invention; and that it is that feature you are trying out?"

Davenport nodded. "Well, if you really have a battery of such power and long life, it will turn the storage battery business upside down."

The Pirate Chief, like all good commanders, was always ready to climb himself to the crow's nest. This speech on the horizon was probably a mirage that would vanish on nearer approach; but there was just a remote possibility it might be a galleon heavy with untold wealth. So like a prudent chief, he piped all hands below decks including the Second in Command, timbered the carronades, put over the helm, and bore down on the stranger.

"Such a battery, if it could be proved out, would be valuable," pursued Grimstead. One of the great merits in his success was that he knew better than to cry down the obvious. "I confess I can't imagine the principle."

"Like to look at it?" inquired Davenport unexpectedly.

This was luck Grimstead had not hoped for—yet. He assented with alacrity. All crowded curiously around while the young man raised the hood.

They saw what appeared to be an ordinary large electric motor, across the frame. In front of it and connected to it by two thick wires was a black box measuring about a foot along all dimensions.

"There she is," said Davenport cheerfully.

"That! Is that your whole battery?" cried Grimstead, pointing an incredulous finger. "Why, the thing wouldn't ring a bell for three weeks let alone a car. You're joshing me, young man. Where's your running battery? Under the seat?"

Without reply Davenport raised the seat cushions to display a recess occupied only by tools; lifted the trap door of the rear to show a neatly empty interior.

"You see, I have nothing up my sleeve with which to deceive you," said he, jestingly. "There's the whole works."

He stooped to disconnect the two wires and tucked the black box under his arm.

"We may as well have some light in the tent for Miss Grimstead," he explained. "I have a little outfit that I will install."

On the return to the camp Grimstead fell back to consult low-voiced with his Second in Command.

"What do you make of it, Ross?" he inquired.

"He's lying, showing off. The thing is impossible."

"Well, he certainly drove up in a night from somewhere."

"He probably lives quite near recharges from water power."

Writer Sees No "Punch" in Rereading of Book

We see frequently the statement of some one that he has read a certain book, usually fiction, two or three times. It seems to us that anyone who can do that and find anything new must have been a negligent reader the first time. We don't care for the bony wreck of the turkey for days after Thanksgiving to be picked over in search of a few shreds we may have missed; and what we haven't missed in a story is like hearing an anecdote a second time. Where's the punch?

Music, our hearts may call for, and over again, but literature doesn't seem to be that way, unless it is a gem of word coloring like Ruskin's Carlyle's or Maeterlinck's, or a poem which is another form of music—ought to be if it is a good poem.

But why one should want to read "David Copperfield" five, six, a dozen times is to us incomprehensible; "Tess of the D'Urbervilles;" or "Jane Eyre." We grasped their pictures, the emotion, their lessons the first time.

True, if, after many years, we have well-nigh forgotten a book, we may refresh our memory by a rereading, while our memory would be refreshed we fear we wouldn't be. "The man will never grind with the water that past."—F. H. Collier, in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Gothic Influence

Gothic architecture is based on the use of the pointed arch in place of the round arch and the use of buttresses to balance the tendency of heavy vaulted roof to push the walls outwards. Thus buildings were made higher, with many vertical lines leading the eye upward. Between the buttresses great windows were left in the walls, which came to be filled with magnificent stained glass. Decorative carving and statuary were lavishly used inside and out. Wherever the elements appear in a modern building it is safe to suspect that the architect has gone back to Gothic for inspiration.

The Brown Creeper

The brown creeper is a methodical bird and one which covers the field of its endeavors with great detail. The bird, somewhat smaller than the English sparrow, is brown and gray on the back and upper parts, making a largely color protected when working on a tree. It is an energetic feeder on larvae and usually starts at the base of a tree and, spiraling around, works its way up to the top, feeding upon all the larvae it can find en route.

MOCKING BIRD.

What have you to make you sing
 Wild troubadour of the thickets?
 What to make your matins ring
 Above the rails and pickets?

"I have a nest in the wild plum tree,
 I sing for the mate who is nesting;
 I sing for the heirs we soon shall see,
 And beauty, high, arresting.

There is food by the garden ways,
 And strength for all our labors,
 Bright hope for many passing days,
 And love for proven neighbors".
 —GRACE DUPREE RIDINGS, Sherman.

HONORED GUEST.

Burn the forest, drain the rivers,
 Plow the meadows; melt the shares,
 Every field and every hillside
 Stake with barbs for human snares.

Use the firebrands caught from woodlands,
 Raze our homesteads, light the piers,
 From the throbbing hearts of mothers
 Blend a toast of blood and tears.

Line the highways, start the preview
 France the Colonels up and down,
 Nail our Youth on cross-beamed timbers,
 MARS the God has come to town!
 —RUTH BRANSFORD WILSON,
 Wichita Falls.

GRIEF ALWAYS STRIKES ME DUMB.

When pleasure comes, I grow intense,
 Delight just sets me wild!
 A spark of joy can make me glow
 And prattle like a child.

I tell my joys to all the world
 But let deep sorrow come.....
 And suddenly, my lips are sealed—
 Grief ALWAYS strikes me dumb!
 —PEARL OWEN GENTRY,
 Malakoff, Author of MEMORIES.

GETHSEMANE.

This I know:
 That when the morrow comes
 That we shall go as others
 When the shadows darken
 And the candle's low,
 And each shall beg his own release,
 Dear Father, give me peace".

 us that an order has been placed for a four-way three light "Stop and Go" sign for the crossing of the Highway on the main street. This movement was started several weeks ago but was held up pending information as to their legality and prices on the lights; which the C. P. & L. promises to suspend from their lines at this place. This will fill a long felt need—if the officials will see that the regulations are enforced. We believe a new ordinance setting for the caption of the act; the amount of fines to be assessed, etc., should be passed and published as the law requires.

 had borne around 7 bushels this season.

SAN ANTONIO LIVESTOCK.
 Monday, August 23, 1937.

(Federal-State Market News Serv.)
 Supplies in the cattle division
 Monday at San Antonio included a large proportion of calves which were mostly plain and medium kinds.
 Calves were active to shippers and to local killers and sold steady to strong with spots higher than last week's dull close. Estimated receipts for the day's trade consisted of 700 cattle, 1,300 calves. Cows sold steady to weak with spots lower on plain and lower grade offerings. Plain steers and yearlings were dull and weak. Bulls and stockers were fully steady.

Steers were in light supply but most plain kinds were unsold late.
 Most yearling offerings were plain kinds selling at $6.00 and down to $4.25 for thin kinds. The bulk of calves were plain and medium kinds selling from $5.50 to $6.50, good calves in light supply at $7.00 to $7.25, few to $7.50. Cull calves
 $4.00 to $4.50. Common to medium butcher cows cashed mostly at $4.00 to $5.25, odd head good fat cows to $6.50. Low cutter and cutter cows

D'HANIS, TEXAS, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 25, 1937

KENO PARTY AT THE PARISH HALL, SUNDAY NIGHT, AUGUST 29, AT 8 O'CLOCK.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ney of Corpus Christi and Mrs. Pierce Stacy of Houston spent the week-end in the home of their mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Ney.

Mrs. Alfred Zinsmeyer and daughter, Grace, accompanied by Mrs. H. L. Muennink and daughter of Hondo, returned Monday from a brief visit to Mr. and Mrs. Tony Taylor at Beeville.

Miss Cecile Braden of San Antonio spent the week-end here as a guest in the H. C. Rothe home.

Mrs. Paul Reinhart has as guests her granddaughters, Jonell and Yvonne Reinhart of San Antonio.

Mrs. Guy Wilkerson, her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Fritz, and Miss Mary Langfeld of San Antonio spent Thursday here visiting Mrs. J. F. Kimmerly.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Reinhart and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Meurin spent Sunday at Trio where they attended a picnic honoring their sister, Mrs. Dora Richarz, on her birthday anniversary.

Donald Albrecht of San Antonio is spending the week here with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. August Albrecht.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sauter of Los Angeles, Calif., visited his aunts, Mrs. Mina Koch, Misses Regina and Bertha Sauter, Monday.

Mrs. Emma King of Marshall is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Annie Haby, and brothers, Fritz, Hugo, and Paul Brotze.

The following have been guests of Mrs. Charles Hubbard during the past week: Mrs. Fritz Russi, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Enderle, Mrs. Steve White, Mr. and Mrs. John Enderle and Miss Margaret Hubbard of San Antonio, and Mrs. Bland of Luling.

D'HANIS PAYS TRIBUTE TO JOE NEY.

A large number of our citizens joined others of Medina County and its vicinity Saturday morning when several places of business here were closed during the funeral services at Hondo for the late Joe Ney. A son of one of the founders of D'Hanis, he was perhaps the most influential and widely known man this town has yet produced, noted for his generosity, integrity, and straightforward manner, and connected with the progress and political life of the county from its pioneer days. Having reached the advanced age of 82 years, his mind was a veritable storehouse for historical data of Southwest Texas. Also natives of D'Hanis are his widow, and his brother, Mr. J. B. Ney, who resides here.

MRS. ANNA PINGENOT PASSES.

A daughter of one of the original founders of D'Hanis, Christian Batot, was Mrs. Anna Pingenot, who died at her home in Eagle Pass on Saturday, August 21, 1937, and who was buried from the Catholic Church of that city on Monday. One of her survivors is a brother, Mr. John Batot of D'Hanis. This town was her birthplace and her home until the time of her marriage. Her husband died in 1909, but three sons and three daughters survive. Numerous relatives and friends at D'Hanis were grieved upon hearing of Mrs. Pingenot's death.

THE BIG CELEBRATION.

Sunday, August 22nd, the annual St. Louis Celebration was held at Castroville, with the largest crowd present in the history of the town.

Early in the morning visitors began to arrive from it seems everywhere, and by noon thousands were inside the gates of the little city.

At nine o'clock solemn High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Dean J. Lenz, after which the relics of St. Louis were offered to the faithful, followed by Benediction which closed the church services. Then all repaired to the grounds prepared to receive the vast throng where dinner was served to all who applied. All the stands had a land office business.

At 3 o'clock a ball game between the Pioneer Oilers of Macdonia and the D'Hanis-Hondo All-Stars attracted a large crowd to the ball park. The All-Stars defeated the Oilers by a score of 7 to 2.

At night a large crowd tripped the light fantastic to the sweet strains of music until the midnight hour when all departed for their respective homes, with the St. Louis annual celebration in the background.

Ed Bates from Richmond, Calif., Henry Frick of Eagle Pass, and Joe Holzhaus of San Antonio were some of the boys who took in the big celebration. Bates and Frick, who were chums in boyhood days, had not seen each other in 40 years. While we mention these three celebrities, we cannot mention any others as there were too many here from all over creation.

Miss Edna Mangold from San Antonio was in Castroville Sunday for the St. Louis celebration.

Mr. Charles Johnson of Natalia was visiting friends at Castroville Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Groff of Gold Finch were Castroville visitors Sunday and took in the celebration.

In Monday's Amendment election, 32 votes were cast at Castroville. From time immemorial custom had it that special elections were held on Saturdays, and general elections on Tuesdays. But a different method has been found by those fantastic law makers, who if they want anything to carry over the election to suit themselves. Where are we going anyway? Shame, shame, everlasting shame! Such a farce of an election!

The WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONAL

by MAX BERNIS

Powers of Government

Why does our Constitution limit the powers it grants to our government?

The age-old theory of government was that it and the people were all-powerful; that the people possessed only such rights as the government saw fit to grant. From this sprang the idea that "the king can do no wrong" and "the divine right of kings."

It took four centuries for the English to force their kings to sign the great liberating charters—Magna Charta in 1215, the Petition of Rights in 1628, the Bill of Rights in 1689.

The American Colonists suffered similarly. In the Declaration of Independence they complained about the king for a long train of abuses and usurpations, for making judges dependent on his will alone, for combining with others to subject us to a jurisdiction unacknowledged by our laws, for declaring the right to legislate for us in all cases, for altering fundamentally the forms of our government, and other "repeated injuries and usurpations."

Profiting by these lessons, our Constitution reverses the age-old idea of an all-powerful government and instead makes ours a government of limited powers—a government in which the people are supreme. Then to further assure keeping the government within the scope of power given it, the Tenth Amendment declares that "the powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people."

is indicated when last year's production is compared with the previous year of only 218,203 tons. On the other hand linseed oil meal produced in 1935 totaled 401,867 tons.

This university authority also speaks of the remarkable adaptability of soybean oil meal as a livestock feed. "It is used satisfactorily," he says, "with all classes of livestock, including poultry," which explains the increasing demand for this product. Ninety percent of the soybeans processed now go into livestock feed, whose high merit has been proved repeatedly by experimental station tests.

Mills at key points today have crushing capacities double that so far required. In many instances farmers exchange beans for meal at the processing plants, knowing the dangers of feeding the whole bean.

Few commodities in history are credited with so quickly attaining scientific handling. In the laboratory new products have been evolved, and processors have been able to develop new markets for such products. —Selected.

TWO SETS OF FARMERS.

Just 161 years ago this month a group of farmers at Lexington, Massachusetts, resented the application in this country of oppressive ideas conceived in Europe, grabbed the nearest available weapons and went out and did a job on the foreign soldiers sent here to enforce those ideas.

And now another group of farmers at Hershey, Pennsylvania, have repeated the historic act of the Lexington Minute Men upon a mob of sit-down strikers trying to impose equally offensive foreign ideas upon us.

Both groups of farmers spoke and acted for the nation. Both groups, when the battle was over and won, raised the American flag as a symbol of the ideals that were being violated. Many million loyal observers of the way things are going in this country feel it is about time the rest of us backed up these farmers and restored the American flag to its rightful place over our homes, our institutions, our workers and our ideas.

We quote the above; what do you think of it?

It is that kind of talk, from a Washington news service, that will water the seeds of revolution that have been so promiscuously sown all over America during the last few years. With more laws and more law-enforcement agencies to protect us from lawlessness than any other people on earth, must we resort to lawlessness rather than law-enforcement to protect our rights?

Why can we not have more law observance and less making of new laws for a change?

There are plenty of laws to end sit-down strikes. Why not enforce them?

ROAD TO FARM PROGRESS.

In several states, notably New York, milk control price laws have been in effect for some years. These laws were passed supposedly in the interest of producers. In actual practice they have apparently harmed both producer and consumer, and have tended to disrupt producer cooperation.

Now farm organizations, led by the Dairymen's League, pioneer milk cooperative, are fighting an aggressive battle on behalf of repeal of such laws, and the substitution of measures which will legitimately encourage producer cooperation. In this way they are supported by informed, unprejudiced commentators. It looks as if they have an excellent chance to win, even though special interests wish price fixing retained.

The producer and marketing cooperatives are the logical bodies to lead farmers in campaigns to do away with unsound, unworkable legislation. These organizations know that it is often true that farm relief measures, even when sincerely conceived, backfire and produce the opposite result from that intended. Their members are coming to realize that the true road toward farm progress is through producer cooperation. —Industrial News Review.

ARM BOUQUETS.

It's Springtime now and flower time And all the world is fair, With wild birds' matin dancing And gay flowers everywhere.

Gone are the winter sorrows Fast melting with the snow, For people, like, the flowers, Await their chance to grow.

Thriving beneath the sunshine Are hearts and flowers alike, With crystal showers and gay smiles And all the world is bright.

For hand in hand Love wanders Over the mountain sides, As Springtime shapes her garlands Into arm bouquets for brides. —ANNIE L. TOWLER.

THE SPOTLIGHT

Lane Tech, great Chicago training school, makes a course in safety driving a compulsory part of the curriculum... using for the purpose four special Studebakers given by the Board of Education. School authorities say this is just the first of thousands of such courses. Hitch hiking, crime breeder, is still tolerated by law in 32 states. Only seven states have outlawed it in 5 years. Smart motorists now use old Roman "thumbs-down" gesture on roadside "thumbs-uppers". A. A. awarded 40 cities certificates of commendation for reducing traffic fatalities during first half of 1937. Used car dealers occupying vacant lots were much bothered by summer dust spoiling the looks of their wares. they now sprinkle calcium chloride around, which draws moisture from the air and keeps ground damp. New San Simeon Carmel road, scenically California's finest, cost $9,000,000. It is engineered to prevent speeding. 140 miles of highway taken the motorists at least 4 hours, unless he is practically suicidal. Over the Waves still favorite song of car manufacturers. May automotive exports were $11,000,000 higher than those of last year, and the year's highest.

THE SPOTLIGHT

Studebaker truck sales are up 84% over 1936 at this time—the whole truck industry is up 8%... Watch for the "Evans Auto Shift," perfected automatic Shift, to make its bow at the November Show. After a woman had taken her driving test, and flunked, her husband came up and wrung the examiner's hand. "I've told her for years she couldn't drive, and I'd have to leave home if she'd passed." National Automotive Dealers' Association urges dealers to pay more attention to buyers in low income bracket. 2/3 of car owners make less than $1500 yearly. That's why used cars sold last year bested new cars by 164%. Quincy, Mass., dismisses infractors of minor traffic rules after they've seen two-hour movie on hit and run driving, and one on Accident Horrors. One double feature we're in favor of. Car colors can now be matched by radio. New Studebaker device consists of disk with changeable combinations of standard colors. When disk whirls, colors fuse into one, the required shade. 95% of standard colors can be radioed, and exactly matched.

MY DAUGHTER—WHAT?

I have no son for cannon's greed,
No son for war to slaughter;
But it can touch—touch—even me—
And claim my precious daughter.

It's been the same since war began,
That sisters, wives and mothers—
Though they are not on battle fields—
Must suffer, grieve for others.

Must my dear girl sometime in life
Have her heart torn asunder,
And part with one dearer than life—
A victim of war's plunder?

Must she too wait with grief-torn heart—
Oh, God, the pain of waiting!
While the god Mars reigns demonmad—
Oh, God the sin of hating!

Oh, why should Nations fight for greed?
Let Peace become the story,
And raise on high the Flag of Christ
To wave above Old Glory.
